According to The Center for Financial Services Innovation, beneficial financial habits can improve financial well-being, even if income stays the same. Households who have a planned savings habit are four times as likely to be financially healthy as those who do not. National rates are from the Federal Reserve Board, May 2018.

Through the IDA Initiative, Oregonians are improving their financial resiliency.

IDA completers build strong financial habits.*

“It was being given the tools, but most important for me, it was teaching me how to apply tools I learned in the classes. It gave me an opportunity to actually make it happen...The possibilities are endless now.”
Charmaine Reddix, homeowner in Portland

“Going through the IDA and saving the money has forced me to think more like a business owner. Had it not been for the IDA process I would’ve never had a business plan. I would’ve just kept making decisions without any kind of proof behind it...It’s helped me realize that it’s not something that’s above me and there are people out there to help me when I need it.”
Kathleen Dickson, owner of OtterBees in Brookings
